Death Takes Prominent Grayling Citizens

Three deaths occurred this week that means much to Grayling—Rasmus Hanson, pioneer lumberman; Edward S. Houghton, surveyor and timberman of this city, and C. T. Kerry, Saginaw, president Kerry & Hanson Flooring Co. Mr. Hanson and Mr. Houghton passed away Monday evening, and Mr. Kerry early the following morning.

R. HANSON PASSED AWAY MONDAY

WAS ONE OF MICHIGAN'S PIONEER LUMBERMEN.

For Half a Century Directed Grayling's Industries.

Rasmus Hanson, Grayling's best known citizen, passed away peacefully at his home here Monday evening at 9:37 o'clock. He had made a noble fight against an attack of pneumonia, which was the second one this year, but he lacked the strength to recover. He also had been greatly weakened some time ago by a stroke of paralysis. He was 81 years of age.

Although Mr. Hanson's recovery had appeared quite doubtful for several days, still the news of his passing was a very decided shock to the people of this city where he had resided for nearly a half century, and it cast a gloom of deep sorrow over its citizens. The news of his passing spread rapidly over the city and messages early announced it to the outside world.

We love to think of Mr. Hanson as we knew him—a keen, intelligent business man, an indefatigable worker, a loyal citizen and faithful and congenial friend. In early life he had learned the lessons of industry and thrift and by their practice not only built up a very substantial competence but also a large circle of friends among his home citizens, those of his chosen State and country until his acquaintance radiated from his own comfortable domicile to the extreme ends of the earth.

In the obituary of his life that is taken from an autobiographical sketch many things are not mentioned that are of interest and that reflect to his great credit. His love for his chosen country led him to generous acts that are well known to a few of his most intimate friends. And those from among our youths who were privileged to answer the call of patriotism when its country was in need will recall Mr. Hanson's generosity when each and every one was favored with a check for an amount that might enable him to furnish some of the many personal wants that are known to soldiers and that are not supplied by the Department of War. It made no difference whether a young man answered the draft or if he made voluntary enlistment, he was given a check by Mr. Hanson of $25.00, and if it wasn't given to him before he left he was looked up and the check mailed. This practice was carried out during the war with Spain as well as during the World War.

Mr. Hanson's gift to the State of 15,000 acres at what was then Portage Lake (now Lake Margrethe) was certainly a crowning event and has proven to be the finest military reservation anywhere in America. This is destined to remain indefinitely a lasting memorial to his philanthropy. This was followed later by his gift of the officers' beautiful club house which has been used and enjoyed to the fullest by the officers of the guard and others.

During the World War Mr. Hanson not only was generous in his contributions to the war funds of Crawford county but lent his aid to some of the neighboring counties.

And too, those of us upon whom the duties of raising funds for local events and in the making up of just deficits have always found him faithful and ready to respond whenever needed. While always interested in politics they say truthfully he said of him that he seldom if ever interfered locally but was willing that the people do the choosing and he was the last to complain should their selections not always have turned out wisely.

In the passing of Mr. Hanson, Grayling is losing one of its most loyal citizens, one who loved his own home city, and a sincere friend. He was a member of the Danish Lutheran church into which faith he received his baptism early in life. By his wealth he was able to assist his church but his benevolence did not terminate there. All churches in our community profited from his contributions. And Mercy Hospital, one of the finest institutions in Northern Michigan, would never have been instituted except for the financial and moral support he gave it.

Obituary

Rasmus Hanson, of the firm of Salling, Hanson & Co., Grayling, Mich., was born at Vester Kipping, Falster, Denmark, Oct. 14, 1846. He attended the common schools until he was 14 years old, and was then confirmed in the Lutheran church. He worked on his father's farm until the fall of 1863, when the war broke out between Denmark and the German confederacy, when, in connection with an army, he started out as an army sutler, but circumstances were unfavorable, and the venture yielded no profits. He returned to his father's farm, but found farm life too slow for his energies, and he finally agreed with his father to emigrate to America. He left his home May 3, 1865, and landed in New York the 15th. He decided to make for the interior, and located at Racine, Wis., where he hired out on a farm and worked four months. He then went to Manitowish, Mich., where he met Mr. B. Sweet on the wharf and hired out at $20.00 per month. In a very short time he worked himself up to the position of foreman for the firm, for whom he continued to work until 1867. Having accumulated a little money, he became associated with Ernest N. Salling in buying timber and lumbering it and selling the logs, and also getting out logs for other parties. In the fall of 1871 he sold out to Englemann, Babcock & Salling, and was engaged as woods' manager by this firm, with whom he continued for two years. In the meantime he had associated himself with Nels Michelson in jobbing and logging, and after leaving the employ of the former firm he organized the firm of Michelson, Hanson & Co., which in 1873 was merged in the new firm of R. Hanson & Co. This firm continued to operate until the spring of 1878, when the name was changed to Salling, Hanson & Co. Mr. Salling having joined the new firm. This firm began operations at Grayling, putting logs into the Manistee river and selling them to parties at Manitowish. In 1882 the firm commenced to manufacture lumber of its own, and bought out a small sawmill, which in 1889, was superseded by a new mill with a capacity of 20,000,000 feet a year. In 1892 a band mill and planing mill were added. The firm owned a large amount of pine, and hardwood timber covering about 60,000 acres. In 1900 the firm began the erection of a hardwood mill at Johannesburg. Mr. Hanson was also a member of the Michelson & Hanson Lumber Co., of Lewiston, Mich., having mills at Lewiston and at Salling. He was a director of this company and general manager of his own company. He also helped to organize the Michigan Sugar Company, the first sugar company organized in Michigan, and also the Bay City Sugar Co., in both of which he was director, and was interested in the Crawford County Exchange Bank and other commercial and financial enterprises.

Mr. Hanson was a Republican, but disagreed with the party as to the treatment of the new possessions. He was an alternate to the Minneapolis convention in 1892 and a member of the Michigan Electoral College in 1896. He was elected the first county treasurer of Crawford county in 1880 and received the entire vote of his township. He was a member of the local school board for 15 years, was a 32nd degree Mason, and was a member of the National and State Lumbermen's Associations, of the Michigan Club, the Loo Hoo, etc.

Mr. Hanson was married Sept. 17, 1867, to Miss Margrethe Hanson, and their five children are Matilda, wife of H. A. Bauman; Margrethe, wife of J. Sidney Graham; Thorwald W.; Esbern and Oscar.

Mr. Hanson also re-organized the German American Sugar Company and served as President for two years, but on account of his extensive lumbering business, he was unable to continue so he sold part of his stock but continued a director of the company. He also organized the Grayling Lumber Company, located at Monroe, Louisiana. He became managing director and treasurer and continued as such until the property was sold and the money refunded to the stockholders. He also organized the L. Jensen Lumber Company, doing business at Ewen, Michigan, in the upper peninsula on the South Shore & Atlantic Railroad. He also became a stockholder in the Diamond Lumber Company doing business in Bay, Wisconsin. He organized the R. Hanson & Sons Lumber Company, Sept. 16, 1908, and also organized the Hanson Land Company, Sept. 16, 1908. He was managing director and treasurer in both of these last concerns. His stock in the L. Jensen Lumber Company he sold in the spring of 1918. He was also stockholder in a great many other companies: The American Car & Foundry, the N. Y. C. R. R., the Penna. R. R., United States Steel and several others.

He was one of the organizers of the Grayling Box Co., that is now successfully operating and also of the Grayling Development Co., that is busy drilling for oil.

A much appreciated gift to the Danish citizens was the erection of beautiful Danebod Hall, where a touch of their native land might be kept sweet in their memories. This charming place has fulfilled many needs both to the Danish societies and to other citizens of Grayling as well. In presenting it to his countrymen Mr. Hanson stated that all he requested in return was that "they use it."

Funeral Thursday Afternoon
The funeral is being held this afternoon. At 2 o'clock services are being held in the home and conducted by Rev. Peter Kjolher, pastor of the Danish Lutheran church. At 2:30 o'clock services will be held at the Michelson Memorial church and be conducted by Rev. J. W. Greenwood, pastor. The remains will be laid to rest in the family burial vault at Elmwood cemetery.

Grayling schools will close this afternoon and the business places between the hours of 1:30 and 4:30 o'clock as a fitting tribute to the honor in which Mr. Hanson was held at home.

The grandchildren of the family, Mrs. Ralph Routier, Detroit; Mrs. Walter Woodson, Salisbury, N. C.; Junior Hanson, St. Johns Military Academy, Wis.; and Misses Margrethe and Ella Hanson, Bennett school, New York City; Virginia Hanson at school in Chicago; are home to attend the funeral. Also Mrs. Rasmus Bay of Montana, sister of Mr. Hanson, has arrived and stockholders of the Salling, Hanson Co. and many friends will no doubt be here for the funeral.

It is with the deepest sincerity that we extend to Mrs. Hanson and the family our sympathy in this their greatest hour of sorrow, and we are certain that such sentiment is in the hearts of their home friends.

C. T. KERRY OF FLOORING CO. DEAD

WEEK'S ILLNESS NOT THOUGHT SERIOUS, CULMINATES IN DEATH

Charles T. Kerry, president of the Kerry & Hanson Flooring Company of this city, prominent Saginaw lumberman and business man, died early Tuesday at his home, 632 Thompson street, after a week's illness. Though he had been ill, his condition was not thought alarming, and it was not until Monday afternoon that it was known to be serious.

For many years Mr. Kerry had been associated with the lumber business in Saginaw, Bay City, Reed City and Grayling, and was well known in Saginaw and elsewhere throughout the state to a wide circle of friends who were shocked to learn of his death. He was director of the Bank of Saginaw and took an active part in business affairs there.

Born in Murray, N. Y., Mr. Kerry came to Michigan as a young man and started a lumber and mercantile business at Reed City, later coming to Saginaw and operating a flooring plant on the Holland avenue site where the United States Graphite Co. now is located.

This plant was destroyed by fire and Mr. Kerry then went to Bay City, where he established a flooring plant, operating it for three years, when fire again destroyed his plant. Returning to Saginaw he purchased the old Ammi W. Wright mill property on Bristol street and established the present firm of Kerry & Way, which developed into one of Saginaw's leading lumber firms. Later he was identified with the Kerry & Hanson flooring factory at Grayling which he was operating at the time of his death.

Mr. Kerry married Miss Nellie I. Cary of Albion, N. Y., and they made their home in Saginaw for about 20 years. He leaves his widow and three brothers, Dr. Frank Kerry, Benton Harbor; William Kerry, Jacksonville, Fla.; and George Kerry, Royal Oak.

He was a member of the Rotary club, of Elfr Khurafah Shrine, the Saginaw club and Saginaw County club and was connected with many other social and industrial activities in the city besides position on the directorate of the Bank of Saginaw.

Strangely coincident the death of Mr. Kerry, who was president of the Kerry & Hanson Flooring Co., of this city, followed a few hours after that of Rasmus Hanson, vice president of the company.

Mr. and Mrs. Kerry maintained a fine home at Lake Margrethe where they loved to spend their summer days. Mr. Kerry too was a devoted golf player and one of the most enthusiastic members of the Grayling Golf club and was one of its heaviest backers.

Mrs. Kerry and Miss Thomas, who has been in the city many years as nurse and companion to Mrs. Kerry and who was really one of that happy family, have the sympathy of their many Grayling friends. The funeral is being held this forenoon in Saginaw.

Among those from Grayling in attendance are Fred W. Welsh, manager of the Flooring factory, Emil Kling and Miss Margaret Hemmingson of the office force and T. P. Peterson, of the office force, A. L. Roberts, foreman of the mill, and T. P. Peterson.

FRANCIS REAGAN NAMED AS FIELD SCOUT EXECUTIVE

F. A. (Jerry) Reagan, former scoutmaster of Royal Oak troop No. 2, Boy Scouts of America, has been named as field scout executive for the North Central division of the Detroit council of the Boy Scouts of America, it was announced today by S. C. Mumford, president of the Detroit council.

Jerry Reagan served in France in the World War as assistant band leader of the 119th field artillery of the 32nd division. For five years he was scoutmaster of Boy Scout troop No. 2 of Royal Oak, sponsored by Frank Wentland Post, No. 253 of the American Legion, Royal Oak. The troop has a drum and bugle corps that took first prize at the state conventions of the American Legion at Bay City in 1925 and at Lansing in 1926. Mr. Reagan carries a life membership in the Frank Wentland Post of the American Legion because his work in connection with Boy Scout activities in the Royal Oak council.

Mr. Reagan completed the training course of scout executive at Briar Cliff, New York, which ended Septem-

EDW. S. HOUGHTON PASSED AWAY

COUNTY SURVEYOR SUCCUMBS TO OPERATION

Grayling residents were astounded Monday night when the word was passed around that Edward S. Houghton had passed away. Mr. Houghton had been ailing for some time and two weeks ago began to be troubled more than usual and Monday submitted to an operation at Mercy hospital and the trouble proved to be cancer. He failed to rally from the operation, passing away at 5:30 o'clock that evening.

Edward S. Houghton was born on August 29, 1866, in Cass City, and was the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Houghton. He received his education in the Cass City schools and in 1903 was united in marriage to Blanche Rosevear, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Rosevear of West Branch, at that place. Mr. Houghton came to the north in 1897 and became an employee as scaler in the lumber mills of the Michelson & Hanson Lumber Co., at Lewiston. Later he acquired timber and land holdings near Lovells and was associated in business with Marius Hanson and T. E. Douglas at that place in the manufacture of shingles, posts and other wood commodities.

It was while he was serving as supervisor of Lovells township that he came to Grayling, having been appointed county treasurer to fill the vacancy made by John F. Hum, who resigned to accept the postmastership of Grayling postoffice, which was in 1914. Mr. Houghton served in this capacity for four years and during the time was elected county surveyor, which public office he held off and on for years. Surveying was his profession and we doubt whether there is another man in the County who knew more about the lands that lie within its borders. He also did much work in the making of maps and plats and was a skillful draftsman. He acted as road engineer when the first trunk line, M-18 was built through Grayling, drawing up the plans for same.

Mr. Houghton took a great deal of interest in the political affairs of the county, and was active in lodge circles, being a member of Grayling Lodge F. & A. M. and Portage Lodge Knights of Pythias.

Surviving the deceased are his widow and two sons, Esmond Lloyd and Nyland Insley, also a brother Charles Houghton of Everett, Wash. The sons are fine young men and a credit to their parents, the elder Esmond, having charge of his father's business at present in which he will continue.

The following have already arrived to be in attendance at the funeral, Mrs. Houghton's sister, Mrs. W. H. Hill of Ann Arbor and her brother, W. H. Rosevear, and his daughter of West Branch, two cousins of Mr. Houghton, Mrs. John Dodge and Stanley Warner of Cass City.

Mr. Houghton and sons have the sympathy of many friends in their bereavement.

The funeral will be held Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home conducted by the Masonic fraternity.

DEVELOPMENT BUREAU TOURIST ASSOCIATION MEET, ELECT AND EAT

Enthusiasm was the predominant feature of the three gatherings at Bay City on October 27, which marked the annual business sessions of the Northeastern Michigan Development Bureau and the East Michigan Tourist Association and the joint Good Fellowship banquet of the two bodies. Agriculture, good roads, reforestation, preservation and development of recreational resources, expansion of these resources to include winter sports, and a score of other topics were discussed by authorities during the sessions.

On the banquet program were the following: Hon. William A. Comstock of Detroit, only life member of the Development Bureau; Marius Hanson of Grayling, Congressman; Clarence E. McLeod and Robert J. Clancy, of Detroit; Arthur W. Stace, Ann Arbor; Herman Lundén, Gaylord; J. Emmet Richards, Alpena; Floyd A. Allen, Flint and Detroit; James C. McCabe, Detroit; H. A. Chamberlain, Standish; Harvey J. Campbell, executive vice-president Detroit Board of Commerce; W. A. Crandall, West Branch; Stanley J. Armstrong, Bay City; Herman N. Butler, East Tawas, and five feminine vaudeville artists from Detroit.

The open forum which followed the business sessions in the afternoon was addressed by Ernest N. Smith, Washington, D. C., general manager of the American Automobile Association; William H. Boehme, Greenbush; E. C. Madenbury, state department of agriculture and A. L. Burridge, Cadillac division highway engineer.

The development bureau meeting was called to order by Herman Lundén, Gaylord, president. Reports of the officers, the president, Marius Hanson, treasurer, and T. F. Marston, secretary-manager, were followed by a report of agricultural activities by L. I. Drake, agricultural agent of the district, and a talk by O. B. Price, agricultural agent of the Michigan Central Railroad. The election of officers resulted as follows: President, Herman N. Butler, East Tawas; first vice-president, H. S. Karcher, Rose City; second vice-president, Marius Hanson, Grayling; treasurer, H. A. Chamberlain, Standish; secretary-treasurer, T. F. Marston, Bay City.

The East Michigan Tourist Association meeting was called to order by J. Emmet Richards, Alpena, first vice-president, in the absence of the president, Floyd A. Allen. Reports of the president and secretary-treasurer, T. F. Marston, were followed by the adoption of membership fee schedules for each county. Mr. Allen arrived by air from Detroit after the election of officers had taken place which included his re-election to the office of president.

The new officers are: President, Floyd A. Allen, Flint and Detroit; first vice-president, J. Emmet Richards, Alpena; second vice-president, Eugene Schust, Saginaw; third vice-president, Al Weber, Cheboygan; fourth vice-president, D. C. Pennington, Detroit; secretary-treasurer, T. F. Marston, Bay City. The executive committee includes the officers and the following: H. A. Bauman, Crawford county and Herman Butler, Iosco county.

At the dinner, when the roll call of counties came, outside of Bay County, Ogemaw county, carried off the honors with an attendance of 32. Rev. J. E. Edginger, of East Tawas, always a prominent figure at the meetings of the two bodies, led the community singing in his own original and inimitable manner.

Among the guests at the dinner were Frank F. Rogers, state highway commissioner and H. E. Powell, state commissioner of agriculture. The Development Bureau went on record in a resolution as opposing the further protection of black bear because of the havoc the bear are alleged to be creating among sheep flocks.

E. C. Madenbury, of the state agricultural department, issued a warning in the open forum of the danger to white pine in the state through the white pine blistering disease.

The Forum meeting, participated in by members of both organizations, endorsed American Forestry week and immediate development of winter sports programs.

The meetings and the joint dinner were generally spoken of as the most successful in attendance and results in recent years.

ANTI COMMUNIST PROPAGANDA TALK

SUBVERSIVE MOVEMENTS IN AMERICA

"Subversive Movements in America," a subject of vital interest to the American people today, will be treated in comprehensive and authoritative fashion in a lecture by Peter W. Collins, of Boston, Mass., Sunday evening, Nov. 26th in High School auditorium. The lecture, which will be free to the people, will be under the patronage of Grayling Council, Knights of Columbus, and American Legion Post 106, and will be part of those organizations' nation-wide educational campaign against the radical movement in this country.

Mr. Collins is eminently qualified by preparation, training and experience to present the true story of a persistent and insidious attempt to undermine American institutions and ideals. For more than twenty-five years he has been an active and outstanding exponent of American traditions of liberty and justice. In 1924, at the All-American Conference in which nearly one hundred American organizations participated, Mr. Collins was elected chairman of the Committee on Subversive Movements. The delegates at this convention represented many millions of men and women in such organizations as the Grand Army of the Republic, the American Legion, Daughters of the American Revolution, Daughters of the Confederacy and others of similar character.

Early in 1926, prior to the revolution in China, the Constitutional Defense League of Shanghai, an organization formed to combat Russian-directed communism in China, called on Mr. Collins, "as one who is supreme in America in knowledge of how to conduct an anti-Communist propaganda," to give advice on how they might best meet this international scourge. His activity in exposing these subversive movements has taken him into every corner of the United States. He has addressed thousands of audiences and has answered countless questions proposed by opponents during the "open forum" which is his policy to hold at the close of his lectures. These periods, during which any member of the audience is urged to submit such questions or objections as he may choose, invariably result in some lively and informative exchanges. His lecture in the High School will be free to the public. There will be no reserved seats, no admission charge, no collection, no solicitation of any sort.

This lecture is intended for High School pupils as well as older people.

G. O. P. AND SMITH

Washington, D. C. — The Republican camp is divided as to Al Smith's political capacity and possibilities. One group holds that his danger, to the Republican Party is likely to be increased by underestimating his strength. This group feels if "Al" is nominated, instead of a Republican walkaway, it will be a real horse race. They credit him with the ability to New York, New Jersey, Connecticut, Rhode Island and headway in Indiana. Adding these electoral votes to those that will come to him out of hand from the Southern states, the margin of safety, as they figure it, will be too close for comfort.

The second group maintain his nomination will allow a vacation period for all Republican leaders. New York, they argue, is full of voters who will support Smith for governor, but never for President; that New Jersey is as strong as the Rock of Gibraltar which is one of its citizens rediscovered; that the talk about Connecticut and Rhode Island is ridiculous, and that the Smith candidacy will automatically result in the border and doubtful states sharply snapping back into Republican line. Republicans as a whole will do well to pick a middle course. One of the first things they must do is get rid of that fantastic thought that if Smith is nominated the South will vote for a Republican candidate. There is not the slightest basis for this conclusion. Furthermore, it will be well for working Republicans to appreciate that not only must the best man be put forward for the Presidency if Smith is to be circumvented, but that the Republican congressional candidates must have ability and the confidence of the people.

Many complaints have been made to the New York police lately that gangs of young men are lurking in the subways and snatching hats off the heads of passengers through the car windows. Maybe these young fellows are just training themselves for jobs as hat checkers in the up-town hotels and restaurants.

One of our friends remarked the other evening that if this trans-Atlantic flying keeps on getting more hazardous all the time he is going to send his mother-in-law on an air voyage to Paris.

Judging from the way they are worked up now there are several New York City editors who will have to go to bed with nervous prostration if Al Smith fails to win the Democratic nomination.

It is said that Shakespeare earned only $6,000 a year from his plays but that "Abe's Irish Rose" has taken in millions. Probably so, but it's our judgment that if they had put on "Abe" in Shakespeare's day it would not have lasted through the first night.

Chicago has installed rubber "stop" signs which will rebound when hit by an auto. What is needed is something which will make the careless driver rebound.

The American free trade newspapers are all saying that Uncle Sam ought not to go too fast in tariff retaliation against France, which is a good indication that France is not entirely sure of her position.

Levine is going to fly home by way of Asia and it wouldn't surprise us to see him get mixed up in that Chinese argument.

If Jack and Gene are still in doubt about who is the best scrapper and really anxious to find out, why don't they get together in somebody's cellar and fight it out?

Of course there won't be any tariff war between the United States and Europe because this would be one war in which Uncle Sam would have the most weapons.

The September warm wave did more to help the farmer in two weeks than Congress will be able to do in an entire session.

A proposal has now been made by the Postoffice Department for the carrying of parcels post by air. This will be all right if the mail man does not get careless and drop some of his packages.

Four cities, New York, Chicago, Boston and Philadelphia are said to be the market for half the oranges sold in America. Wonder who gets the most lemons?

President Hindenberg is still arguing about the war guilt. He ought to be good enough politician to know that Germany became the guilty party when she lost the war. The only way she could have made the allies guilty of starting the war would have been to defeat them.

The French want another big loan from America and say that they need the money for road building and repair. There may be some merit in this if they can show that the American tourists are wearing out the highways.

Championship fights between Tunney and Dempsey seem to be like peace conferences. Their decisions never settle anything.

A new musical show on Broadway is being advertised as "clever from beginning to end." That the time has come when the cleanliness of a show can be advertised as a drawing card indicates that there is some hope for the future, despite the pessimists.

A Pennsylvania man left his wife an up-to-date still as a legacy. Doubtless he thought that if she could keep it in operation she would never want for the necessities of life.

We believe that Babe Ruth could lick either Dempsey or Tunney if the referee would let him take his bat into the ring with him.

"WE"

Of the many good things that are resulting from Lindbergh's trans-oceanic flight, none is more valuable than the new realization of interdependence the public has obtained from Lindbergh's use of the word "we."

Who among us is independent? Who accomplishes anything unassisted? Who can live, clothe himself and go about in safety except by the help of others? Yet how often does any of us make acknowledgment of our interdependence? It is only when some genius flashes into view and makes the simple statement that "we" wrought some great deed that one gives a thought to the help one gets from multitudes unseen and unknown.

Isn't there a thought here that all of us can apply to our own business? Who runs the transportation system in your town—the president of the company? The general manager? The superintendent of transportation? The power engineer? The conductor? The office boy? The banker? The mayor? No—none of these, but all of them together, plus the hundreds of thousands of others who supply the means by which all are served and through which all prosper.

Our business is a great co-operative effort—"we" are engaged in it for the benefit of "us." May all of us perceive and appreciate this great truth.

"CHILLY CHILE"

From the "News Bulletin" of the Better American Federation, of California, we quote the following paragraph which appears under the title of "Chilly Chile":

"America may well heed the courteous finesse of Chile in its treatment of the Reds, I. W. W.'s, Bolsheviks, anarchists and even the 'Pinks.' For there, the Government transports without charge all undesirable and their ilk to a snake infested, sunbaked rocky Pacific isle where the exiles may split evenly between themselves whatever their hates—including their false doctrines, plots, bombs and Godless creeds. They may even murder among themselves, thereby indulging in their favorite pastime without further endangering the soundness of a faith in God and Government."

CURBING SPEED MANIACS

Is Michigan's new traffic code which has been in effect for several weeks, working out as its framers believed it would? Has the removal of the 35-mile speed limit, while making penalties and reckless driving more severe, had the effect of curbing the driver who persists in taking all kinds of chances regardless?

Recently, so numerous were the reports of plain violations of the present law, that Governor Fred W. Green felt impelled to issue warning that hereafter a more careful watch would be kept over the highways of the state in an effort to bring to an end the appalling loss of life directly traceable to reckless driving. In his message to the state the Governor asked the co-operation of all village, city and county officials in the traffic officers in bringing about a war to the finish against this class of drivers who are no more or less than potential murderers.

The reckless driver cuts in and out of traffic, passes cars on curves and steep grades, drives to the limit of his car regardless of congestion, endangering the lives of everybody. He has an evil accomplice in the man who drives while drunk. Both must go. The sober-minded, careful-driving public is fast rising in revolt. They are demanding the prompt removal of these unnecessary risks in no uncertain language.

The average automobile driver would be just as careful if there was not a single traffic law in existence. They have a who's who's for their own safety and the safety of others. On the other hand are those who seem speed-crazed the moment their hands come in contact with a steering wheel. It is this latter class of drivers who are making the highways unsafe for even ordinary travel. The Governor has sounded the call—let us join in the movement to drive the reckless driver out of this state.

Serve fresh tomatoes as often as possible at this season—sliced, fried, baked, or for favoring other dishes. Tomato juice is excellent to simply make juice and chilled, taken as an appetizer before any meal.

Joe Gavenda is driving a new Essex coach purchased from the Corwin Auto Sales.

Schoonover & Hanson recently delivered to Holger Hanson a fine new Buick coach.

Arrangements are being made for establishment of a Star mail route to operate from Grayling to Lovell and return. The plans are to deliver the mail twice each week—Mondays and Fridays and on Wednesdays the mail will be delivered by train. This plan will likely be consummated, according to Mr. Hinds, postoffice inspector, who was here last week looking over the route. These, however, he believes will only be temporary pending the establishment of a regular daily mail route, which will probably be done next summer to accommodate many families living along the river and others.

Grand Chancellor McKimmie of the Knights of Pythias, of South Haven, Mich., was in the city Monday evening to hold a meeting with the members of the local order. There was an exceptionally large attendance, to greet the Grand Chancellor and a fine meeting was held. Matters pertaining to the good of the order were talked over. The Pythian order is founded on friendship, the principles of which it is intended should not only be exercised between the members of the order but are to be exemplified towards people in general. The Pythian ritual was written by Justin Rathbone at Bar Harbor, Upper Michigan, at a time when he was teaching school. This is the only fraternal order that was chartered by Congress which was done at the order of President Lincoln after hearing the ritual read, and is largely responsible for the reestablishment of friendship between the people of the north and south following the Civil War. A replica of the school house in which Rathbone wrote the ritual of the Pythian order will be shown in Grayling next Friday night and Saturday.

TRESPASS LAW IN FORCE THIS FALL

With the opening of the upland hunting season the attention of sportsmen is being focussed on the Horton anti-trespass law, in effect for the first time this fall, and many questions are being asked as to what effect the law will have on pheasants and rabbit shooting.

Much uncertainty and confusion prevails as to the law. Many hunters are even denying a belief in its existence, or claiming they do not believe it can be enforced. Those that continue to maintain this position are doubtless due for an unpleasant surprise quite early in the gunning season.

Other sportsmen are uncertain as to what lands are affected by the law, and as to what steps they must take before entering a farmer's fields to hunt.

Briefly, the Horton law prohibits hunting without permission on farm lands or wood lots connected therewith. Which means that it governs every acre of land in the settled sections of the state. It is in the unclean lands of the northern counties only so far as the grounds of private hunting clubs are concerned.

The law does not provide that the hunter must secure written permission before entering the land. Oral permission is sufficient. It was originally planned to demand a written permit, but that section of the bill was changed during its course thru the legislature.

Another provision stricken from the original act was one conferring the powers of a deputy sheriff, constable or game warden on all land owners so far as making arrests for trespass was concerned. The land owners have none of the powers of an officer under the present law, and must call a regular officer to arrest trespassers.

It is the matter of penalties that the new law is most drastic. For the first offense, if the fine of $10 to $50, or a jail sentence up to 30 days if the fine is unpaid. For the second offense the fine ranges as high as $100, and must be accompanied by a sentence of not more than 30 days in jail. The jail term is compulsory in addition to the fine, for offenses after the first. In view of these penalties, however, there is little likelihood that any hunter will be guilty of a second offense.

It should be remembered that the new law does not prohibit or curtail hunting. In fact it does little more than to provide definite penalties for an offense that has been commonly practiced in the past because conviction was difficult and the penalties light. Trespass has never been legal and the Horton act is an attempt to make it unprofitable as well as hunting, under permission, will be as accessible as ever to the Michigan sportsman. —Roscommon Herald-News.

KEEP SHADE TREES TRIMMED

By Edgar W. Cooley.

The best time to trim ornamental trees is late in the fall, after the leaves have fallen, or early in the spring, before the leaves appear. All the branches are then expected and it is easy to give them the necessary attention and treatment.

In pruning shade trees we should always trim out:

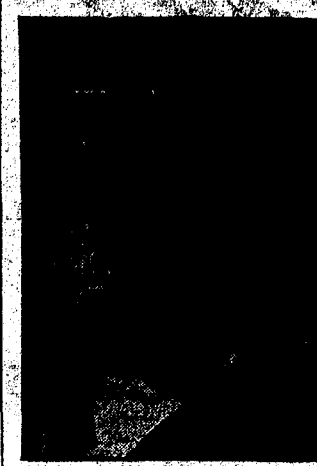

All dead, dying and diseased wood. All stumps and bruised parts of branches.

Every branch which runs against another branch and wears through the outer bark, exposing a portion of the tree.

All branches which have grown too long or too slender so that they extend outward in such a way as to destroy the natural and characteristic form of the tree.

All branches except those of evergreen trees) which hang so low as to make it difficult for people or vehicles to pass under them.

In trimming evergreen trees we should cut out only the dead and unsightly branches. An evergreen is always more attractive when the low, dead branches are removed. We should make all cuts along the

"INSIDE" INFORMATION

Use the vinegar from a bottle of sweet mixed pickles for making salad dressing.

You can brime some of the late vegetables and green tomatoes for making pickles later on. The U. S. Department of Agriculture will tell you how.

A bit of garlic rubbed around the salad bowl—just enough to give a mere suggestion of flavor—makes an acceptable improvement in flavor for many people.

When choosing linoleum for the kitchen floor, bear in mind the three kinds—plain, printed, and inlaid. Plain linoleum is likely to show footprints and other marks easily. Printed linoleum has to be varnished often to preserve the design. Inlaid linoleum has a design which goes clear through to the backing. It is consequently more expensive, but the pattern does not wear off.

Meat loaf is one of the most appetizing meat dishes you can serve. Any lean meat may be used if gristle and skin are trimmed off. From a fourth to a fifth as much pork as beef is a good rule.

Tomato catsup and thick mayonnaise mixed half and half, make a delicious dressing for plain lettuce and some other salads.

In choosing curtains for the living room, select a fabric that will stand light and laundering. The colors should tone in with the other furnishings in the room without making the windows too conspicuous.

Use the juices from canned vegetables. If the food is good, so is the juice, and it contains valuable minerals which the body needs. Serve the juice with the canned vegetables or use it in soups, stews, or sauces.

Pear salad is unusually good. Either fresh or canned pears may be used. If using canned pears, drain the fruit, but save the pear juice for a fruit punch, with lemon or orange juice added. Wash and chill the lettuce so that it will be crisp. Arrange the pears on the lettuce, sprinkle with grated cheese and garnish with salad dressing. Fresh pears must be pared and cored just before serving or they will discolor.

Cottage cheese is delicious in salads. Pile it lightly on lettuce leaves or shredded cabbage. Add a colorful garnish such as diced pickled beet, strips of pimiento, chopped green pepper, or sliced raw tomato, and French mayonnaise, or boiled dressing. Or for a more elaborate salad, mix the cheese with chopped nuts and olives and form into balls or mold in cups. Cottage cheese also combines well with fruits, fresh, stewed, or canned, in salads.

We should never use a dull saw. A saw that is sharp and properly set will make the work easier and the cuts will be smooth and clean. After a cut is made the exposed wood should be covered with coal tar, yellow ochre or white lead. This will keep the rain from saturating the exposed wood and rotting it, and will also help to keep away boring insects.

FINANCIAL AND INDUSTRIAL RESUME

(By William McMahon, President New York Institute of Financial Research Inc.)

October steel bookings average 6 per cent above those for September. There is now a moderate upturn in ingot production and sheet operations are increasing. Building keeps up a good level and fabricated steel awards this week were 42,000 tons, a higher figure than for six weeks.

Automobile production is on the decline. New models are losing their power to keep up sales and there are general price cuts. Profit margins are narrow.

Cotton loadings are a trifle lower, taking the country as a whole, although the Western roads are profiting by large grain movements.

Cotton textile mills are active under a broadening demand. Rayon is gaining in sales. Silk is dull and wool prices are a little better. Copper is working into a stronger position as foreign buying assumes a soldier tone, but the lead and zinc markets are dull.

Prices for cotton, grain, sugar and rubber are lacking in firmness and are not as high as were predicted a few weeks ago by some of the technicians.

Wholesale and retail trade is good, no better and no worse than last week. Representative stocks in the security exchanges have lost ground, owing to irregularities in the earnings reports of some of the leaders. General Motors made a good showing, while steel was disappointing. Purely speculative holdings are being reduced and a large professional element are selling short. But cheap money continues, and this fact, added to the strong position of most industries and the big earnings of some of the important units, justifies the hope of a continuing strong market, both in stocks and bonds.

BEWARE OF CARBON MONOXIDE

The season is at hand when motorists cannot afford to be indifferent to the dangers of carbon monoxide poisoning which increases enormously with the coming of cold weather. This warning is sounded by Geo. A. Murray, Dir. of Safety of the Automobile Club of Northern Michigan, who points out that while every season brings knowledge of this danger to car owners, the death toll from carbon monoxide poisoning increases annually.

"Carbon monoxide is a subtle enemy," says Mr. Murray. "It strikes without warning. This gas, which is generated in the combustion process within the automobile engine, is colorless and odorless. But this fact should not mean that the motorist need be unaware of its presence. He should know that wherever there is an automobile engine running in a small closed space, there is carbon monoxide. In the open, these potentially poisonous fumes mix with a far greater quantity of air, and consequently their effect is not serious. "The small private garage is the scene of many tragic effects of this poisoning. In the conventional sized garage of this type, the engine running three minutes will generate enough carbon monoxide to kill. Because of this, the car owner should exercise extraordinary precautions against running the engine with the garage doors closed. Even the warming-up process should be completed in the open air. "The person who has been overcome by this poison in some cases may be revived if removed to the open air, and if artificial respiration methods are applied immediately. But this, in most cases, is inadequate. The only certain way to prevent a tragedy is to avoid the slightest contact with this ever present danger of winter motoring."

SAFE DRIVING REQUIRED

It is the careless driver that makes railroad grade crossings dangerous. Whenever a grade crossing accident occurs the public has a habit of considering the crossing instead of the driver. Nearly every grade crossing accident is preventable. Careful driving would eliminate the hazard entirely. The automobile is what we must think about, not the crossings. Ninety per cent of all auto accidents occur on highways. Not over 10 per cent occur at grade crossings. Separation of grade crossings would entail a heavy burden on the taxpayers, while leaving 9 per cent of the hazards of automobile accidents uncared for. Safe driving costs nothing, yet it would remove the hazards of driving, not only at grade crossings, but on the highways as well.

good proportion. If pork is not added, a small amount of suet should be put through the chopper with the meat.

Farm Bureau Notes

R. D. Bailey, Co. Agricultural Agent

WHAT IS A BOY?

"He is the person who is going to carry on what you have started. He is to sit right where you are sitting and when you are gone, attend to those things which you think are so important."

You may adopt all the policies you please, but how they will be carried out depends on him.

Even if you make leagues and treaties, he will have to manage them. He is going to sit at your desk in the Senate and occupy your place on the Supreme Bench.

He will assume control of your cities, states and nation.

He is going to move in and take over your prisons, churches, schools, universities and corporations.

All your work is going to be judged, praised and condemned by him.

Your reputation and future are in his hands.

All your work is for him, and the fate of the nation and humanity is in his hands.

So it might be well to pay him some attention."

—Meadville, Pa., Kiwanis Club.

Our Share of Responsibility

The writer of these notes, as an agricultural advisor, has other duties connected with farm life besides advising what to do to make alfalfa grow.

There are some other things relative to rural life besides things that can be touched with the hands. There is good citizenship, neighborliness, sociability of the neighborhood, looks of the home and farmstead, the neighborhood schools.

Whatever I may or may not write about the others, I wish to voice some truths about the farm school, or rural school, in which each farm family has such a large ownership, and should have a large interest.

Visit the School

I wonder how many parents visit the local rural school even as often as once a year. Not many. There are too many who are too much like those who drive an auto from the back seat. The inspections that farm folks make of their school is generally left to a once-a-year visit by the women. Men seldom go, excepting to say, "If you can't stop fighting among pupils on the road home after school, I guess we will get some one who can." There is very little constructive, helpful visiting in a friendly spirit. Visits by men or women are so infrequent that the teacher is nervous, frightened and does far from her best when the visitor does arrive. When visitors arrive at such long intervals the children seldom act natural.

Local Talent and Help

In every district there is much talent among parents that could be of great help to the school. This should always be utilized to the fullest every year. It is not enough that some farmer tell once in his lifetime something that he knows especially well. There are cases in which the same man or woman might talk each year to the children:

For instance: suppose that in a district some man were a specialist on good milking cows. If I were the teacher there I would induce that man to bring to the schoolyard, some bright afternoon, every fall, two or three as nearly ideal cows as he had; and, with the pupils gathered around the farmer and his cows in the schoolyard, listen to a talk, just off-hand talk, by the farmer, on the points of a good dairy cow, as he passes his hand over this part and that part of the animal.

Though but little schooled, this farmer, by his years of hard practical experience, his love for fine animals, would in all likelihood, be able to tell the children in language that they could well understand, many things of great value about selecting good animals by their appearance, and how best to feed them afterwards for best results.

Once a year would be none too often to have this done, for there might be some new pupils, and those who had heard the story before would have early impressions strengthened, to the end that when they select stock for themselves, or help father select it, they would have quite a safe ideal set up in mind to help in the selection.

There might be a successful grower of hogs, sheep or finisher of fat cattle in the neighborhood. In my plan of school life, it would be perfectly proper for the teacher to lead the school over there to receive a lesson in management of one of those forms of stock.

There may be some one in the district who has been a sailor. He should be lured to the school to tell of foreign countries visited. This would be particularly effective if the geography class is studying one or more of those countries.

Some worthy man or woman in the district may have been born in another country. Use of tact will, in many instances, enable the teacher to induce such person to sit in a chair, perhaps not in the most conspicuous place in the room, and tell of scenes, customs and experiences there, to the great delight and information of teacher and pupils.

Early settlers in the district, township or county should be discovered, brought to school and their treasure of reminiscence used for the information and delight of the school. Things said and done in these talks and demonstrations above mentioned should be used next day for oral and written re-production work in the language classes of several grades.

Pupils should be encouraged to ask and guided in asking, intelligent questions of the visitor, at the proper time and in a tactful and courteous way.

Others

I would ten times rather have my pupils take half an hour gathering around to watch the method of splicing a saw, or a plane, or of sharpening a rope, as done by some good man, who perhaps was no talker, but could do things, than to inflict upon them the dead monotony that characterizes for too many school rooms.

Which do you suppose these visitors of your school will become, friends or enemies? They will become your friends, and the school's friend, and will silently or vocally refer to the school as "our school," particularly if not embarrassed by tittering pupils. There will be no tittering pupils if the teacher knows her business. It is good for the pupils manners to have visitors.

Principles of Agriculture Should Be Taught Daily

One of the most astounding things that an observant person notices in our rural schools is the fact that, though these pupils come from farm homes, to schools supported in part by these farmers, there is no teaching about farm life. Nothing said or done to lead to appreciation of, or improvement of, farm life. Nothing said or done that leads to more skill in meeting problems there. No lesson in agriculture. No books on agriculture. No agriculture bulletins or farm papers on what should be the "reading table." That great, noble subject that could easily be made the most interesting one in each day's work, because it is so at hand, so real, so alive, so possible of illustration with things within the pupil's life and experience that great subject is flatly ignored.

Teachers need not say that the subject is not useful. Everybody knows better. Teachers need not say that there is not enough about agriculture so that there would be something to teach each day. A new fact, process, method or principle of agriculture, can be found for each school day of the school year. Teachers need not say that it would not be interesting to pupils so young. It has been shown with actual children that, taught right, it can be made the most interesting topic of the day's work to children including third grade and up, and much of it enjoyed and understood by even lower grades.

Farmers need not say: "What does that town girl teacher know about farming?" If she prepares she can know as much about it as she does about physiology that she presumes to teach and is allowed to teach—just learned it.

Teachers need not say: "I can't teach agriculture. I never lived on a farm." They do not hesitate to teach the geography of the countries that they never saw, and may never see; but, which they teach about because they gave diligent study to learning something about them. Let them do the same thing about the fundamental principles of agriculture.

Neither teachers, parents nor school officers can side-step the issue by saying, "There is not time for any more subjects." Teachers in earnest on this subject have found time in school containing all the eight grades, by teaching the other subjects better, condensing, cutting out gibb trash, driving more swiftly and to the point, thus saving valuable time and making the impressions on the minds of the pupils more intense, and so, more lasting.

Is this sense or is it not? From Hoard's Dairyman of Sept. 25, 1927, we clip the following:

"A standard work on rural schools, now in its second edition, contains a plan to the effect that nearly all country children will remain on the farm except the few of them that nature has designed for higher spheres of usefulness in the city. These exceptional children should be taken care of, but their wants should not be allowed to dominate the course of study. But how many of these exceptional children are there? Are they in the majority? Probably so, in some rural communities, if the question was left to the parents. The error of the professor who wrote that excellent treatise on rural schools is very common, that the doctor, or the lawyer, or the minister fills a sphere of higher influence than the farmer. I submit that the picture of a successful farmer and his families that occasionally appear in Hoard's Dairyman in connection with the description of successful farms, show a rugged determination and strength of character unsurpassed by other classes. The station they have reached has demanded of them the very highest mental, moral and physical qualifications. Looking again at that picture of the Michigan farm boy in Hoard's Dairyman, I would say that the school he went to had had something to do with his pride in rural life. It may be possible to find children with a city education on successful farms, but not likely."

"A system of education that trains boys and girls away from industry and work and makes them parasites as far as economic production is concerned, is an intolerable evil. If you want to know where to find the future presidents of the United States, if history is to repeat itself, you will not find them yonder in some great university, nor lounging in the Peacock Alley of some great hotel, but you will find them out in the great Mississippi Valley doing chores on the farm, doing the common things of life to the best of their ability, doing them in such a way as to inspire the confidence of those about them in the integrity of their character. If that is what it takes to be a 'hick,' then the more 'hicks' we turn out of our schools, the better we will be."

Who said that? Some old grouchy of a farmer? Not at all. John J. Tigert, National Commissioner of Education, said that and enough more like it to fill a column at a recent state teachers' convention. There are only two excuses imaginable for a man to talk that way. One is that he believes in what he says, and the other is that he thought such a talk might do the teachers some good.

We feel so deeply in earnest over this matter of improvement of agriculture through the early training of farm children in the intricacies and details of real farming, that we propose to appear further to you in an article to appear here on "New Schools for Old."

"Friendly" Flower Names

A scientific man who indulges in an amateur way his taste for gardening says that he likes to know the scientific names of flowers, of course, but that in gardening the names he cares most for are the common names. These, he says, are like the nicknames and pet diminutives one keeps for intimate friends—not formal, not businesslike nor dignified, but just friendly.

400 "EXTRA DRY"

Check Carbon in Advance
With Shell Gasoline and Shell Motor Oil.

Every motorist is familiar with the evils of excess carbon. But not everyone knows that carbon can be checked in advance by the selection of an "extra dry" gasoline and a "golden clear" motor oil to use with it. Q Both the character and the condition of the crankcase oil influence the amount of carbon deposited. If the fresh oil put into a car already contains excess natural carbon, an excess deposit of carbon in the motor surely will result. If a "wet" gasoline, containing greasy particles is used, the motor oil will be diluted quickly, and carbonization will take place freely.

The secret of checking carbon, therefore, does not lie wholly in the use of an "extra dry" gasoline or of a "golden clear" motor oil but in the combination of both. Then, each will supplement the virtues of the other to give a new sensation of power, a new thrill to driving, a new freedom from carbon and its attending evils.

—The Anti-Carbon Pair

400 "Extra Dry" Shell Gasoline and Golden Clear Shell Motor Oil are the "anti-carbon pair" scientifically refined to go and work together. 400 "Extra Dry" Shell Gasoline burns completely because it vaporizes completely, leaving no greasy residue to injure the crankcase oil. Golden Clear Shell Motor Oil contains the lowest possible amount of carbon, and when used with 400 "Extra Dry" Shell Gasoline deposits less carbon than heretofore had been thought possible.

Why take chances with your car? Why run the risk of trouble, damage, repair bills and unduly depreciation when 400 "Extra Dry" Shell Gasoline and Golden Clear Shell Motor Oil are so conveniently available at Shell Yellow-Red Service Stations, and cost no more than the ordinary kind?

Four Things

Four things a man must learn to do if he would make his record true; To think without confusion clearly; To love his fellowmen sincerely; To trust in God and Heaven securely.

The Hallowe'en party given by the teachers last Saturday evening, in the school dining room was voted a decided success by all who attended. The room was attractively decorated in keeping with Hallowe'en. Games, contests and ghost stories were features of the evening's entertainment. A delicious lunch was served. The Chippewa Sewing Club held their monthly business meeting Tuesday after school. Doris Corsaut was appointed song leader and Ethel Wixson, game leader. After the business, songs and games were enjoyed by all.

Don't Forget

The date of the Seniors' Bake Sale, November fourth and fifth are the days. Baked goods, made by expert cooks will be on sale. Hot coffee and chocolate, with doughnuts, will be served.

The Germination Box is proving to be very interesting. The beans have reached a height of ten inches, the corn nine and a half, and the peas five and a half. The girls in the "Gym" class are doing splendid work. Ethel Wixson, Margaret Boroff, Ethel Barber and Ethel Richards, are very proud of the records they made Monday evening. They won all contests and made a total of seventy-five baskets.

We have discovered a new poet in school; Marquita Land, by name. Here is an example of her work: When We Were Young and Foolish In the days of long ago, We sat in the farthest corner The three of us in a row; When we were young and foolish In the days of long ago.

When we were young and foolish In the days of long ago, The teacher used to scold For talking a lot you know; When we were young and foolish In the days of long ago.

But now that we are older And not so young and gay, Our parents now look over The bad deeds of that past day; When we were young and foolish, And also full of play.

Coach Cushman's eleven met Mancelona on the local field Friday afternoon. It was a fast game from the start. Although neither team scored during the first half, Grayling played much better than Mancelona. After the half, however, the game began to tell on the Grayling team. Grayling made one touchdown while Mancelona made three and also the try-for-point in each case, closing the game with a score of 21 to 6 in favor of Mancelona.

This was a hard fought game and the last to be played here this season. Our next and last game will be at Gaylord Friday afternoon.

Can't Talk To Wife, Too Cross and Nervous

"Even my husband couldn't talk to me, I was so cross and nervous. Vinol has made me a different and happy woman."—Mrs. N. McCall. Vinol is a compound of iron, phosphates, cod liver, peptone, etc. The very FIRST bottle makes you sleep better and have a BIG appetite. Nervous, easily excited people are surprised how QUICK the iron, phosphates, etc., give new life and pep. Vinol tastes delicious. MAC & GID-LEY, Druggists.

Interesting Events In Grayling 25 Years Ago

INTERESTING ITEMS OF NEWS GATHERED FROM THE FILES OF THE AVALANCHE OF 25 YEARS AGO.

The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Larson was buried last Friday. Chris Jensen had a hand crippled by a cogwheel in the shingle mill, last Thursday. He lost a finger.

Snow squalls last Tuesday whitened the face of the earth several times for a few moments.

Salling, Hanson & Co., brought in a carload of fine heavy horses last week for their lumber camps.

Mrs. Tubbs and daughter returned from an extended visit to Gaietot county last week, and Mr. T. is happy as he got tired of "baching."

Mr. and Mrs. John Everett have returned from a five weeks trip with their horse and carriage, visiting in the south and east part of the state. It was a delightful outing for both.

Jas. Johnson, who has been foreman of H. C. Ward's big farm in Maple Forest for several years, has packed his "turkey" and started for the great Northwest.

Wm. Woodfield is unusually smiling, all on account of a pair of chestnut horses and new harness in front of the delivery wagon. They are beauties and will lose nothing in his hands.

Julius Kramer has thoroughly repainted and papered his store building, the old express office, and is moving his tailoring business there. He will have one of the most pleasant rooms in town.

The Grayling Cigar Co., is the latest addition to our manufacturing interests. They are situated on the second story of C. Hanson's building, and are putting out a fine brand of smokes. Messrs. D. Mould and J. Young, comprise the firm.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Ingerson gave an entertainment at their home last week, which was attended by both young and old people, which will long be remembered by those in attendance. It was given as a surprise to Wm. and Art Ingerson, who are hewing out a home for themselves on the worthless plains, that any old settler might be proud of. Every member of the family was present. Dancing was engaged in, the sweet music furnished by Messrs. Tubbs and Lamont, until 3 a.m., after which a bounteous lunch—was served, consisting of ham and sandwiches, pumpkin pie, cake, grapes, etc., when the guests departed after receiving a hearty invitation to "come again."

Michelson Memorial Church

John Wilfred Greenwood, Minister

November 6th, 1927.
At 10:30 a. m. the Pastor will bring the third address in the series entitled "Snapshots of the Disciples of Jesus." The character of this study will be "James, the Silent Man."

At 7:30 p. m. the address will be for the purpose of getting across a fundamental in the Gospel, and to quicken interest in some of our great poems. The poem for next Sunday night will be "Invictus—by Henley."

A Thought for the Week
That home which rules its childhood with military rigidity, and lack of affectionate care, is no more to be desired than is the Church which seeks to make the Christian Religion a series of rules to be obeyed, a series of prohibitions to be observed.

The Methodist Church used to have a series of rules. There is a period in the life of a child when rules are understood since love is not intelligent enough to choose the right. But when love becomes intelligent, it seeks "to do those things well—pleasing unto Him." We have come to that place in our Church where we are more concerned about furnishing new motives in the life so that the very act of making choices gives strength to the Christian. We cannot categorize sins. So the Church has substituted suggestions making for a healthy spiritual life, and has done away with the rules.

Paragraph 6 reads in part: "We beseech every member of the Church absolutely to avoid 'the taking such diversions as cannot be used in the name of the Lord Jesus.' The social appeals of our modern day are too many to suggest what must be avoided and what must be chosen. For 'we believe that the social and recreational instinct is God-given and, if properly guided, will strengthen, rather than injure the spiritual life.'"

The Church is very much aware that often those who have observed the used-to-be-rules in punctilious manner have not been so deliberate in the keeping of such other suggestions, covetousness, and the bearing of ill-will. How vicious such practices are, and how harmful to the lives of ourselves and others, all know.
